

Hershey Explains Plans For Army of 10,000,000 By the End of Next Year

Selective Service Director Will Call Childless Married Men in December or January

By CHARLES MOLONY
WASHINGTON, Sept. 20 (AP)—While the uncertainties of the war preclude any authoritative forecast of the ultimate strength to which the army and navy will grow, Selective Service Director Lewis B. Hershey indicated today that more than 10,000,000 Americans would be under arms by the end of 1943.

Hershey and his aides gave these guides to future operations of the draft in an interview clarifying and recapitulating the various orders and announcements issued piecemeal in recent weeks.

The supply of single men, including those with dependents, will be exhausted this fall and calls for childless married men will begin generally in December or January as the strength of the army alone tops 4,500,000 by the end of this year.

Fathers To Be Called
Unless Congress authorizes the drafting of 18 and 19-year-olds, the supply of childless married men will be exhausted about a year from now and the calling of men with children will begin around Oct. 1, 1943.

Even the drafting of the teenagers might do no more than delay the calling of family men because the total number of men who ultimately will be required for the services is not yet known. Approximately 2,250,000 teen-agers registered this year for drafting after they reached 20, but so many of them have enlisted that perhaps no more than 1,000,000 are left.

Dependency Still Factor
Not every single man will be called before the general calling of married men begins, nor will every childless married man be called before the general calling of men with children, because local draft boards may still consider dependency and occupational factors.

Although deferment was largely eliminated by the act providing allowances for dependents of service men, it may continue to be granted if the local board decides that hardship might under some circumstances be deferred even though men with children were being drafted.

Germany Denies Tank Expert Is Victim of War

Death of Field Marshal von Kleist Reported by Russians

NEW YORK, Sept. 20 (AP)—Russian and German official sources were in sharp conflict today over reports from Soviet sources that the German field marshal and tank expert, Ewald von Kleist, had been killed on the eastern front.

Moscow stood by the report today. The newspaper Izvestia, according to dispatches from Moscow, said that the "bullet of Soviet revenge" had ended the career of von Kleist and warned he will not be the last enemy general to fall.

The German High Command, however, issued a categorical denial that von Kleist had been killed.

"The assertion made by official Soviet quarters and relayed by the Reuters agency alleging that Col. von Kleist has fallen is not true," a communique stated.

The high command, as usual in such disputes, did not elaborate that statement.

Official Russian quarters did not enlarge on the statement of last night's communique that von Kleist was "slain by a Russian bullet."

But the official press accepted the

Munich and Mediterranean Ports Bombed by Fleets of RAF Planes

LONDON, Sept. 20 (AP)—The RAF struck at Munich, birthplace of Nazism, last night, dropping tons of bombs and starting big fires. While other British planes raided the Saar valley, and in the Mediterranean area Allied fliers pounded Sicily and Greece.

The size of the aerial fleet which crossed to southern and western Germany was not disclosed, but the British acknowledged the loss of seven planes, which, on the basis of five per cent losses in big raids, would mean that about 200 planes made the 1,300-mile round trip to Munich and the lesser distance to the Saar valley.

Large Fires Reported
The air ministry said large fires were left burning in Munich which

PREACHES, FIRED

Because he requested every Sunday off to preach, the Rev. Howard L. Stanbrough, a Des Moines, Ia., fireman for fourteen years, has been discharged from the fire department. It was ruled that his ministerial duties violated a city ordinance prohibiting firemen from engaging in activities outside the department. He has appealed his case.

Finland Shows Willingness To Cease Fighting

Statement by Procope May Be Feeler for Separate Peace

By ELTON C. FAY
WASHINGTON, Sept. 20 (AP)—Diplomatic interest centered today on a statement by Finnish Minister Hjalmar J. Procope that "Finland may still consider dependency and occupational factors."

Although deferment was largely eliminated by the act providing allowances for dependents of service men, it may continue to be granted if the local board decides that hardship might under some circumstances be deferred even though men with children were being drafted.

Procope issued his statement at the conclusion of a press reception at the legation late last night. It came while the Russians still held the Nazi push in the Caucasus to slow motion.

Prospects Improve
The minister said that Finland desired to cease fighting when guaranteed.

Chinese Closing In on Kihwa

CHUNGKING, Sept. 20 (AP)—Central News reported tonight that Chinese troops were closing in from three sides on Kihwa, capital of Chekiang province and site of an air base which could be used for raids on Tokyo.

The nearest column, driving east along a railroad, was reported only six miles from the city. Other columns were pressing down from the north and northeast.

Chinese forces have recaptured a stronghold from the Japanese about two miles southeast of Kihwa, a rail junction in northern Kiangsu province, the agency reported.

Other warfront dispatches told of the recent recapture of several points along the Honan-Anhui border and the sinking of two enemy boats near Minyang, southwest of Hankow. Some 100 Japanese soldiers were declared drowned in the sinkings.

Legion Opens Ranks to Vets Of War No. II

Asks Congress To Amend Charter To Take In New Members

KANSAS CITY, Sept. 20 (AP)—The American Legion voted today to open its ranks to veterans of world war II and asked Congress to amend the Legion charter to this effect.

The charter, granted by Congress, permits only men who were in the armed forces in the first World War to become Legion members.

The resolution to open the membership, offered to the national legion convention by Thomas W. Miller of the constitutional amendments committee, was passed overwhelmingly.

A counter-proposal to postpone the question until after the war was shouted down. The proposal was offered by Harry Nolt of Twin Falls, Idaho, chairman of the Constitutional by-laws committee.

No Second Convention
In a second resolution passed by the convention, it was agreed that if Congress did amend the charter the Legion's constitution would automatically be amended. This would eliminate any need for a second convention to pass on Congress' decision.

Earlier, Lieut. Gen. Ben Lear, commander of the Second Army, told the convention the army must weed out its leaders who cannot stand the gaff because "we are late and we have far to go."

He said "physical and mental vigor, coupled with tactical knowledge, enterprise and capacity to make quick, sound decisions—no matter what the condition of fatigue—is required of all commanders in this war."

Ask Universal Service
Meanwhile, first Legion committee reports were filled with resolutions calling for more vigorous prosecution of the war. They included the Universal Service bill. National Commander Lynn Stambaugh said he had little doubt that the 1,500 delegates would insist on enactment of the bill which would authorize the president and Congress to draft capital and labor in an emergency.

Lear, in his speech, praised the officers candidate schools where selected enlisted men are trained.

"This is not only an example of democracy at work in our army," he asserted, "but it is indeed the most practical and efficient way to bring

Coal Industry Makes Plans To Speed Production

Labor and Management Launch First Big "Victory Committee"

By MABEN GRAHAM
WASHINGTON, Pa., Sept. 20 (AP)—Labor and management joined here in launching the first big "victory committee" of the coal industry designed to stimulate output, which has dropped as much as one-half a ton a day per man in most districts since the attack on Pearl Harbor.

Approximately 150 representatives of the Pittsburgh Coal Company, second largest commercial soft coal producer, and members of the United Mine Workers from the concern's sixteen mines pledged support to an all-out-for-war production drive at the meeting last night.

Other committees are being formed in the industry.

J. B. Morrow, president of the company, stressed the fact that for the duration it would be his policy to inquire of every proposal: "Will it help to win the war?"

Must Keep Plants Running
"If requests are made for supplies or additions merely because it will enable the company to make more money and not contribute to increased production, the request is pigeonholed," said Morrow. "We must pledge that not one plant in the nation producing for the war will need to cease operations for a lack of coal."

Representing the union, Patrick T. Fagan, district president of the

14,000,000 Pounds Of Scrap Collected In Baltimore Drive

BALTIMORE, Sept. 20 (AP)—An estimated 14,000,000 pounds of scrap metal and rubber was collected in Baltimore today by 1,150 volunteer workers, among them 550 soldiers brought from adjacent military establishments to help man 256 collection trucks.

Roland M. Long, chairman of the city inter-industry salvage group, said approximately 10,000,000 pounds still remained to be collected when the drive was suspended at dusk. This will be taken up tomorrow by volunteer crews and trucks.

Germany Reports Sinking 38 Ships In Allied Convoy

Blast of Trumpets Preceded Announcement of "Victory"

BERLIN (From German Broadcasts), Sept. 20 (AP)—The German high command announced today, with jubilant fanfare of trumpets reserved for great victories, that thirty-eight freighters of a British and American convoy bound for a northern Russian port had been sunk in a furious air and submarine attack in Arctic waters.

In addition, it was stated, three war vessels—a destroyer and two patrol boats—were sunk, and two other destroyers damaged so seriously by torpedoes that they probably were lost.

(There was no confirmation of these claims from any other source. The first authoritative British statement was that "German claims regarding losses of a convoy to Russia are grossly exaggerated." Official quarters, always silent while operations are still in progress, made no comment.)

Many Ships in Convoy
The Germans called the British and American expedition to take war materials to Russia a "capital convoy," meaning it was an operation on an exceptionally large scale. They declared that only a small portion of the convoy, originally consisting of about forty-five freighters, it was said, managed to reach the Russian port.

The attack, carried out in fog and storm extending northward to the edge of the Polar ice barrier, started

Six B. & O. Tank Cars Destroyed At Brunswick, Md.

Catch Fire When One Car Collides With Freight in Yard

BRUNSWICK, Md., Sept. 20 (AP)—Six Baltimore and Ohio railroad tank cars were destroyed by fire today after one of them collided with a freight car during shifting operations.

Several cars loaded with trucks for army delivery were damaged, as was the railroad right-of-way.

B. and O. officials estimated damage at $10,000 and said an investigation would be made. They reported there was no interruption of normal traffic in the yard or on the main line.

Fight Blaze Two Hours
Firemen from Brunswick, Hagerstown and Frederick fought the blaze for two hours before bringing it under control, but it required five hours to extinguish the flames.

A brakeman piloted the six tank cars while a new train was being

Seven Lives Lost In Plane Crash

BLAIRSTOWN, N. J., Sept. 20 (AP)—A wrecked army airplane with seven bodies in it was found today by state police in a heavily wooded section of Walnut valley, four miles from here.

Reports of hearing a plane crash were received last night by state police and a large searching party scoured the hilly countryside before locating the wreckage today.

In New York, headquarters of the Eastern Defense Command and First Army announced that wrecking crews were enroute to the scene.

The type of plane, identification of the dead and the point of take-off or destination of the plane were not revealed, the announcement said.

Police Gazette Barred from Mails In Order from Postmaster General

WASHINGTON, Sept. 20 (AP)—The National Police Gazette was barred from the mails tonight in a ruling by Postmaster General Walker which accused it of "profitably pandering to the lewd and lascivious" and which indicated the Post Office Department's policy on risque reading matter and pictures.

The policy appeared to be that "isolated or casual incidents" of objectionable material in periodicals might not result in action toward cancelling their second-class mailing privileges but that the Police Gazette's practice "is to publish at length in each issue stories and pictures recording, in elaborate detail, the acts of 'strippers,' sex crimes, and immorality, and to devote most of its pages in each issue to these matters."

Terming the low second-class rates a subsidy, Walker held that Congress never intended to subsidize the Gazette's purposes.

The order followed a hearing held earlier this month at which the publisher of the Police Gazette defended its contents and described the magazine as "an American tradition." Walker noted, however, that the present Police Gazette began in 1935 after the previous publication of the same name had been out of business for some time and that "the character of the publication has substantially changed since the present publisher leased the right to use the name."

The order left the way open for the magazine to file a new application for second-class mailing privileges "when the publication does not violate the laws of the United States" and meets postal regulations.

Russians Recapture Several More Streets in Stalingrad In Savage Attacks on Nazis

NAZIS CAPTURED NEAR STALINGRAD

Under guard of Soviet soldiers, a long line of Nazis are shown marching into captivity behind the fighting front. The men were captured in the bitter battles on the southern front around Stalingrad. The defenders of the besieged Russian city are now fighting in the streets on the outskirts and resealed their hard-pressed lines in hand-to-hand combat after Nazi troops had succeeded in establishing spearheads.

BERLIN REPORTS GERMANS HAVE REACHED VOLGA AT STALINGRAD

BERLIN (From German Broadcasts), Sept. 20 (AP)—German troops have reached the Volga river at several points in the Stalingrad area, and fierce fighting is going on in the town itself, German dispatches from the front stated today.

Russian troops, the high command reported, attempted to relieve the defenders of Stalingrad by an attack from the north but that it failed.

The action about Stalingrad was said to be "narrowing down," the enveloping troops systematically closing in on the city. Military quarters said the "wedges" driven into the Metropolitan area, and the reported thrust to the river at several points indicated that German strategy was to divide the Stalin-

Nazis and Japs Known To Have Plotted in U. S.

Evidence They Worked Together before Pearl Harbor Presented

By JAMES J. STREIBIG
WASHINGTON, Sept. 20 (AP)—Evidence of German-Japanese collaboration in military espionage here long before Pearl Harbor was disclosed today as the Federal Bureau of Investigation acknowledged that a Japanese agent was linked with the big Nazi spy ring broken up in June, 1941, but that he escaped.

Lieut. Cmdr. Takeo Ezima of the Japanese navy, who masqueraded as an engineer inspector with offices in New York under the name of E. Sato, the FBI said, was a liaison man for the spy ring, the largest uncovered so far. Of that gang, thirty-three are serving prison terms aggregating 279 years. Most of them pleaded guilty.

Escaped to Japan
As the FBI was arresting the spies, Ezima quietly left New York for the west coast, boarded the Japanese freighter Kamakura-Maru and went home. The ship sailed ahead of schedule, the FBI said, to accommodate the naval officer. Ezima's hasty departure was in contrast with his arrival for a three-year working visit on the Heian-Maru at Seattle in the summer of 1938.

The story of Ezima was learned from the FBI through his appearance in a current motion picture short, "The FBI Front," which shows a brief sequence from the movies of spy meetings taken secretly by G-men and used at the Nazis' trial. Previously there has

Taylor Audience With Pope Keeps Press Wondering

Roosevelt's Personal Envoy Spends Long Time with Pontiff

NEW YORK, Sept. 20 (AP)—The long audience of Myron C. Taylor, personal representative of President Roosevelt, with the pope in Vatican City Saturday, caused the European press to bristle with speculation today.

It ranged from suggestion—perhaps Axis-inspired—that the Americans had a peace plan to the belief in some quarters that Nazis excesses in occupied countries may evoke some expression from the church.

Taylor's visit to the Vatican City came at a time of intensified persecution of Jews in occupied countries, particularly France. It coincided also with a new wave of executions of hostages by German police, and of preparations in France to deport thousands of laborers to Germany.

Press Speculation
The Portuguese and Spanish press, it was stated by dispatches reaching this country today, indulged in surmises as to whether Taylor had a peace plan. But the overwhelming opinion of the neutral press seemed to be that he brought sweeping indictments of Nazi conduct in occupied countries and that the Vatican heard a plain statement of the moral indignation of the United States.

In still other quarters the possi-

American Sentry Reported Killed In Belfast, Ireland

BELFAST, NORTHERN IRELAND, Sept. 20 (AP)—An American soldier was reported shot to death under mysterious circumstances today while on sentry duty in Belfast.

United States army authorities declined to give the soldier's name. They said there was no suspicious civilian seen in the vicinity at the time and suggested that he might have committed suicide.

A shot was heard soon after the sentry went on duty and comrades who hurried to his post found him dying of a bullet wound in the head.

28th Day of Siege Finds Reds Fighting Furiously In Defense of Volga City

Defenders Rip Gaps in Wall of German Infantry and Tanks in Hand-to-Hand Fighting; Moscow Reports Repulse of Enemy in Certain Areas; Fighting near Voronezh Costs Nazis 3,000 Troops

By HENRY C. CASSIDY
MOSCOW, Monday, Sept. 21 (AP)—Red army troops have recaptured several more of Stalingrad's rubble-strewn streets in savage counter-attacks which ripped additional gaps in the German wall of infantrymen and tanks and left the Nazis still short of their long-expected victory on the Volga.

As the siege of Stalin's city entered its twenty-eighth day, the Red army high command for the third straight communique reported at midnight that Soviet counterblows had flung the enemy back in certain areas "and recaptured several streets" in a struggle hitherto unequalled in this war's ferocity.

OBEY STALIN'S ORDER

The Russians were obeying Stalin's historic order to die rather than to retreat, and successes were measured in yardage in Stalingrad's suburbs, which have been battered to ruins by incessant shelling and bombing.

Six German tanks and fourteen motor vehicles were destroyed, and about 300 Germans wiped out in a single engagement within the city, and the Russians still showed no signs of cracking under the strain.

The Russians also reported defensive successes in the Mozdok area of the mid-Caucasus, and southeast of Novorossisk near the Black Sea coast. Eighteen Nazi tanks were destroyed and more than 200 German Tommy-gunners were wiped out at Mozdok, and four enemy tanks and two German companies were destroyed at Novorossisk, the communique said.

Red Marines were credited with the success at Novorossisk where the Germans were trying to drive southward along the coast toward the southern Caucasus.

Fighting Near Voronezh

Heavy fighting still raged in the Voronezh area of the upper Don river at the top of the Nazi salient which has reached Stalingrad. More than 3,000 enemy troops were killed in three days in this sector where the Red army has been trying to relieve pressure on Stalingrad with constant attacks on the Nazi flank.

In an unidentified sector of the Far North, presumably the Arctic region northwest of Murmansk, the Russians told of a Soviet marine landing behind the enemy's lines. More than 150 Germans were killed, and ten bunkers and one ammunition dump were demolished, the communique said.

But all these fronts were overshadowed by the key fight at Stalingrad, where the Germans continued to press forward.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 20 (AP)—Private William Raymond Hammer, 21, One Hundred Seventy-sixth Medical detachment, Fort Myer died today from a pistol wound received after an argument on a Washington street.

Companions said the shot was fired early today by a remark of two negroes who made a remark about a young woman accompanying Hammer.

Hammer, a native of Petersburg, Va., had been in the army for a little more than one year.

Meanwhile Rubber Administrator William M. Jeffers was generally expected to announce this week the initial phases of the program on which he set to work immediately upon his appointment, including possibly some details of the proposed nationwide rationing.

Repeal of Silver Purchase Act Is Urged by Cellar

New York Congressman Sees "Asinine and Scandalous" Situation

WASHINGTON, Sept. 20 (AP)—New measures to repeal the silver purchase act introduced by Rep. Cellar (D-N.Y.), brought the cry from western Congressmen today that eastern bankers were seeking to revise the monetary system under a cloak of wartime necessity.

Declaring that the burial of 1-361,000,000 ounces of monetary silver at West Point, "sorely needed by industries," was "asinine and scandalous," Cellar proposed to repeal the 1934 act which requires the treasury to buy silver until it attains a 3 to 1 ratio with gold in the monetary system and the 1939 law which requires the treasury to buy all domestically-mined silver at 71.11 cents an ounce.

Referred to Committees
The bills, introduced Thursday, were referred to the Ways and Means and the Coinage committees, respectively. Opponents generally expressed the expectation that they would remain on the committee tables.

"If they show any signs of life, we'll present a united front against them," Rep. Hill (R-Colo.) commented.

"These boys from New York have had enough to say about the country's finances. They've put us in a hell of a hole. If we're going to start overhauling the monetary system, then let's go all the way and not just talk about silver."

Similarly Rep. Murdock (D-Ariz.) told interviewers that "the eastern bankers seem to have the idea that silver has no place in the monetary system—that it is good only as a commodity," a conception he said was erroneous.

Other Metals Mined
Rep. Robinson (D-Utah) remarked that "other metals are taken out of the ground with silver—metals such as zinc, lead and copper—and the fact that the government pays a good price for silver permits the operators to produce cheaply those other minerals which are so vital to the war effort."

Cellar told the House that the country's annual silver production was 70,000,000 ounces, "far more than is necessary to meet the needs on defense and normal industries," but that because of the silver laws none of this was available to industry but "must be bought up by the government and buried."

He termed this situation "the result of the machinations of the formidable silver states" and advocated repeal of the laws to enable "those industries in need of silver to compete fairly with the government for its purchase."

Berlin Reports

grad defense area into sectors which would not communicate with each other, and then to reduce them one at a time.

Shell Russian Bridges
It was reported here that the Russians were sending materials and men into the city from the east across auxiliary bridges. These bridges were declared being shelled constantly by German artillery.

One of the German air force's chief tasks, it was asserted, was to batter at supplies flowing to the city from the east and that in carrying out this mission German bombers ranged as far as the Western Shore of the Caspian Sea.

There, fliers reported, two long trains carrying oil on the only north-south rail line still remaining in Russian possession in the region, were spotted. The airmen said the trains were set afire in low-level attacks and that their bombs did extensive damage to the vital rail line which leads to the oil fields in the deep Caucasus.

German and Rumanian troops were reported pushing southward along the East Shore of the Black Sea. The number of prisoners taken in this region increased to about 11,000, Nazi accounts said.

To the east of this zone Bavarian and Wurttemberg troops, especially trained for fighting in rough country, were declared gaining ground despite that mountain passes were filled with snow. Hard fighting was continuing along the Terek river, where German troops, the high command said, threw the Russians out of fortified positions.

Taylor Audience

bility of a Vatican pronouncement on the German administration of occupied countries was awaited.

The usually well-informed Vatican correspondent of the Swiss newspaper Corriere della Sera observed that there has been pressure from American Catholic quarters to induce the pontiff to "take a hostile position against National Socialism, or at least to place it on the same level as Communism." Then he recalled that Soviet diplomacy had never renounced its proposal to establish relations with the Holy See.

Vatican Stand Important
A Vatican stand against Nazism, continental observers said, would have reverberations among Catholics from Lisbon to the fighting front in Russia. On that front, Italians, as well as Catholic soldiers recruited from the Balkans, Spain, France and other Axis-dominated countries are motivated partially by the belief they are engaged in a Christian crusade.

Universal Service Resolution Ready For Senate Vote

Gives President Wide Powers over Manpower and Industry

WASHINGTON, Sept. 20 (AP)—A measure granting the president wide powers to coordinate manpower and industry for maximum efficiency in the war effort was drafted today by Senator Hill of Alabama, the Democratic whip.

The resolution, to be introduced tomorrow, would lay down a governmental policy "that there shall be universal service of all citizens" and "total mobilization" of industry and give President Roosevelt control over "material resources, industrial organizations and services" vital to war.

Hill said that the purpose of the measure, an amendment of the Selective Service act, was to place industry under a coordinated production program and to provide the workers where they were needed most to keep the program running full blast.

In thus laying definitely before Congress problem which has engaged government officials for months, Hill acted without consulting other administration officials. He explained that "we have got to come to something of this kind to get the maximum efficiency possible in fighting this war."

As he outlined the proposal, the government would be empowered to direct the management of any industrial plant to produce any type of war equipment needed and to insure that the plant would be manned.

"The government would manage the management, but would not operate the plant, unless it was forced to take over to obtain the results it wanted," Hill said.

He proposed that manpower control be exercised through local selective service boards which would be authorized to call in workers employed in non-essential industries and direct them to take war plant jobs. These boards also would be directed to prevent labor "pirating" among industrial plants and to keep agricultural workers on the farm.

The universal service provisions would apply to both men and women from twenty to sixty-four years old, inclusive.

Finland Shows

anted her security, but he reiterated his country's determination to fight on until all menace to her security had vanished. Food prospects for Finland were better, he said, and the nation's future "looks somewhat brighter."

Procope made a point of explaining that no peace proposal had been made to Finland. He put it this way:

"In diplomatic discussions and in the foreign press the possibility of a separate peace between Finland and Soviet Russia has been suggested. However, no peace proposal has been made to Finland, still less any promise of restitution of territories belonging to her and least of all any guaranty for lasting security."

A hint of Finnish interest in finding a guarantor of her security was contained in Procope's assertion that:

States Finnish Aims

"The aim of the Finnish nation is to keep her land in her own hands until a lasting peace built upon real guarantees comes. If at the end of the World War Finland were occupied or invaded, which great power would be willing to open hostilities against the invaders in order to drive them out from Finland?"

Procope contended that "Finland never joined any bloc of the big powers nor did she plot against her mighty eastern neighbor Soviet Russia." Finland, after the earlier attack by Russia in 1939, entered the present war in June, 1941, Procope contended, only when Russia again attacked to wipe Finland off the surface of the earth.

Allied Warplanes Continue Attacks On Buna and Lae

Burn Five Barges and a Tugboat, Official Report Says

GENERAL MACARTHUR'S HEADQUARTERS, Australia, Monday, Sept. 21 (AP)—Allied warplanes, continuing their now daily attacks on Japanese supply concentrations along the northern New Guinea coast, have bombed and strafed Buna and Lae, burning five barges and a tugboat at the latter port, Southwest Pacific headquarters reported today.

Aerial assault was leveled upon Kokoda, enemy base lying inland from Buna and on the path of the Japanese advance across the Owen Stanley mountains toward Port Moresby.

As for fighting in the mountain jungles themselves, the midday communiqué said patrol activity was extensive "but the general situation is unchanged."

Thus, since last midweek, the enemy apparently has failed to make progress in its land offensive aimed at the capture of Port Moresby, chief allied position on New Guinea. The attacking troops last were reported at Ioribaiwa, native village in the southern foothills of the Owen Stanleys twenty-two miles from Moresby.

The Allied Southwest Pacific command issued the following communiqué at noon:

Northwestern sector—Reconnaissance activity only.
Lae—Allied fighters attacked water front targets, anti-aircraft positions and buildings with cannon and machinegun fire. Five barges and a tugboat were burned at the wharf.

Buna—Allied attack planes bombed and strafed enemy supply installations, causing fires and explosions.
Kokoda—Allied fighters heavily strafed huts and bridges and destroyed supply dumps.

Owen Stanley area—Extensive patrol activity continues, with no change in the general situation.

Nazis and Japs

been no disclosure of Japanese participation in the spy plot.

FBI on the Inside
Agents of the FBI had filtered into the spy ring and were, in fact, operating its hidden radio station near Centerport, Long Island, N. Y., which was the communication center of the gang. This station worked with Germany's main espionage radio station in Hamburg, whence came instructions for operations in this country.

On Oct. 19, 1940, the Hamburg station sent that "Carr" was to meet a Mr. E. Satow on a certain date at a Japanese club in downtown New York. "Carr" was the name used by Everett Mipster Reeder, a Nazi agent now serving sixteen years on his plea of guilty to an espionage charge.

"Carr" met "Satow" and so advised Hamburg by radio. Hamburg then sent word that "Satow" would handle bulky material intended for shipment to Germany.

Worked with Nazis
The Nazi spies had been sending messages by radio and documents and samples of American war material by boat. Everything was "censored" by the War department, unknown to the spies, before it left the United States. British interference made the route through Lisbon, Portugal, more difficult, and presumably the German spy command decided to use the longer route through Japan.

Elzima's progress outlined to the spies was for a four-day run to the west coast, where the stuff would be picked up every two days by boats sailing for Japan.

The little Japanese officer showed much interest in the methods of the spy ring and was greatly impressed by their apparent ability to get information—a regard which must have faded when he learned of the FBI participation.

Those of the spies who did not plead guilty were convicted by a federal jury Dec. 13, Frederick J. Duquesne, 63, described by the government as the mainspring in the plot, was sentenced to eighteen years.

ed Sept. 13 and was concluded yesterday, the German report said.

Allied Planes in Action

It added that a strong naval force which surrounded the convoy and ranged the Arctic Ocean for hundreds of miles, put up a spirited defense. Allied fighter planes took to the air to meet the German bombers, the report continued, and it was said that at least three of these were hit and plunged blazing into the sea.

The freighters reported destroyed by the air force totaled 241,000 tons while the five vessels credited to submarines had a displacement of 29,000 tons, making the asserted loss to Allied shipping in the whole operation 270,000 tons.

The Germans said that extraordinary preparations had been made to push the large convoy through to Russia, and that as a precautionary measure the vessels went almost to Spitzbergen to avoid German sea and air patrols.

tinued to hurl fresh tank divisions and motorized infantry into the assault which was supported by clouds of Nazi dive-bombers.

Hand-to-Hand Fighting
It was a swaying struggle of embittered men grappling hand-to-hand, of Soviet anti-tank crews pumping shells at close range into German tanks which had smashed into the city's broad avenues.

(The German high command devoted only two brief sentences to the battle, saying Sunday that the fighting "continued with unabated ferocity," and that Soviet relief attacks from the north had failed).

The midnight communiqué issued early today indicated little change in the situation, which remained critical for the Russians.

The Soviet communiqué said counter-attacking Soviet forces cleared the enemy from a number of suburban streets overnight but the government newspaper Izvestia subsequently reported the Germans clung to some new-town positions and the peril to the city admittedly was on the increase.

The night-charging Russians, reinforced by workers recruited from factories and sailors from a Volga flotilla, were reported to have dislodged the Germans from a building at a time with daring hand-grenade assaults. Nazi tanks moving through the streets were declared knocked out by Soviet gunners firing armor-piercing bullets at point-blank range.

Heavy Fighting in Suburbs

Heavy fighting raged in the northwest suburbs where Russian and German faced one another from behind barricades and buildings separated by a no-man's land only yards wide.

As an example of the ferocity of the bloody struggle, Stalingrad dispatches said that one street in this sector changed hands repeatedly in three days of fighting and at last accounts was held by the Russians.

Thwarted in their street rushes, the Germans were reported to be trying to storm buildings by building structures of factories as fortresses. In a neighboring sector the army newspaper Red Star said the Germans made numerous attacks but were repelled by Russian automatic rifle fire in counterattacks.

Just outside the city the Russians said their forces occupied a series of important hills, improving somewhat their positions in that area and that in a sector to the south Russian cavalry and motorized infantry exterminated a karrion manned by Rumanians.

After bringing up his reinforcements, German General Fedor von Bock was said to have thrown more than eighty tanks and two regiments of motorized infantry into an assault on a narrow Soviet-held sector but Izvestia reported Russian batteries and mortars forced them back across the battlefield littered with hundreds of Nazi dead.

Allied Warplanes

Dealing further blows at the Japanese, General MacArthur reported, Allied fighters flew up and down the Kokoda track, the invasion route from Buna, on New Guinea's opposite coast across the Owen Stanley mountains.

"Buildings, huts and sheds along the track were heavily strafed with cannon and machine-gun fire," the communiqué said.

Ship Set Afire

The Allied fighters also set fire to an anti-aircraft position. Ranging out to sea, other Allied planes, in this instance Flying Fortresses, set on fire an enemy cargo vessel in Vitiaz Strait, off New Guinea, and attacked a large motor boat from a low altitude in the face of considerable anti-aircraft fire.

Fortresses partly silenced the machine-gun fire at a low altitude and all returned to their bases after this blow.

In Goodenough Bay, New Guinea, Allied fighters strafed a Japanese whaling boat and killed its occupants.

The longest attack reported in today's communiqué was a raid by medium bombers on Buka Island, at the tip of the Solomons. These planes dropped bombs in the target area of an enemy airfield in poor weather conditions, starting a fire. They did not observe other results of the raid.

Coal Industry

U. M. W. and district Vice President John Busarello, appealed for a united effort in the job ahead.

"From this day on it will be your obligation to reduce absenteeism on the one side and to make sure company sees to it the mine properties and supplies are available for constant production on the other," declared Fagan. "Anything less is un-American."

Record Production Certain

While the nation's total coal production this year will likely exceed that of any other in two decades, that will be due to steadier work and reopening of many mines, a survey discloses.

One of the biggest companies in West Virginia, in a report found typical of the industry, said it produced an average of 5.51 tons for each man employed in July, 1941, and 5.50 tons in December but only 5.11 tons in July, 1942. One group of mines employing 4,000 men had 2,200 man-days lost in one week last July due to absenteeism.

The production drop has been accompanied by increasing talk among miners for higher pay. The convention of anthracite miners last week suggested a $2 a day boost to the present $7 a day minimum for seven hours work.

Norris To Press For Abolishing Of Poll Taxes

Backs Bill To Prohibit Them as Requirement for Voting

WASHINGTON, Sept. 20 (AP)—Senator Norris (Ind-Rep.) said tonight he would insist upon "expedient action" by a Senate Judiciary subcommittee this week on a bill to prohibit poll taxes as a requirement for voting for national officials in primaries and general elections.

Norris said he believed that Congressional passage and presidential approval last week of a bill to permit members of the armed forces to vote without paying poll taxes "gives assurance that Congress will vote to wipe out the poll tax entirely" as a requirement for voting in federal elections.

A meeting of the Senate subcommittee to consider the poll tax bill was called by Chairman O'Mahoney (D-Wyo) for Tuesday. O'Mahoney said opponents of the bill, introduced by Senator Pepper (D-Fla.) probably would be heard at that time.

O'Mahoney said the witnesses would include "some of the attorneys general" of the eight poll tax states, Tennessee, Arkansas, Mississippi, Virginia, Texas, Alabama, Georgia and South Carolina.

Meanwhile, Senator Guffey (D-Pa.) chairman of the Democratic Senatorial Campaign committee, urged that the fall political campaigns be brief and stripped of "haranguing and faultfinding."

"This is no time to put on an exhibition of national disunity, political or otherwise," he declared in a statement.

"Name-calling and bitter arguments will have no place in the coming senatorial campaigns. Creating dissension and disunity will only play into the hands of Hitler and the Democratic party will not do business with Hitler or his heinous colleague, Hirohito."

INTERPRETING THE WAR NEWS

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON

The navy's report that army bombers chased a strong enemy sea force which included several battleships from the American-held sector of the Solomons leaves the immediate intentions of the Japanese in doubt.

The battleships, it is suggested, may have been frustrated in making a rendezvous with aircraft carriers and transports for another major foray such as that which was frustrated in the battle of the Coral Sea.

The belatedly reported bombing incident occurred last Monday about the time the marines were beating off an attempt by Japanese land forces to recapture the seized Guadalcanal air field, and thus could have been a phase of that action. There are a number of other possibilities as well.

Japs May Come Back
Whatever the Japanese actually intended to do in the latest stage of the battle of the islands, it is all but a certainty that they were not finally rebuffed but will be back shortly in as great strength as they can bring to bear.

At the risk of a large part of their badly battered fleet, or more cautiously by the infiltration tactics at which they are adept, the Japanese are obliged to make a decisive fight for the southeast Solomons and New Guinea, and lose no time about it, or expose their conquests to increasing danger.

Almost simultaneously with the navy's latest report was a new reminder to Tokyo's admirals that they had better hurry if they hope to dominate the Pacific before the full American might is felt. This was the announcement that a new aircraft carrier Lexington had been rushed to the launching stage a year ahead of schedule. Less than two months ago a powerful sister ship, the Essex, slid down the ways.

Other Ships on Way
These alone replace American losses in carriers and they represent only a fraction of those that are taking shape under the riveting hammers of men working around the clock.

Cause for still greater uneasiness in Japan was the report of a British authority published in the past few days that the United States was converting a half dozen fast battle cruisers and a number of smaller warships of the cruiser type into carriers, along with numerous merchantmen. The Lexington, which succumbed to Coral Sea wounds, and her surviving sister ship, the Saratoga, were thus converted from battle cruisers saved from the 1922 disarmament scrap heap.

announcement without reservations. Izvestia observing that "the Soviet bullet which reached von Kleist is reaching millions of other Fritzies, and will reach all Fascist invaders from ordinary soldier to field marshal." The paper said Axis soldiers had pronounced their own verdict when they crossed the Russian border.

Von Kleist led a tank army into France, but his achievements in Yugoslavia were more spectacular. His forces took Belgrade, breaking Serb resistance to the German occupation. In Russia he had been assigned to the Moscow and Southern sectors.

Parity Revision Upward May Not Be Considered

Farm Bloc Apparently Reconciled to Roosevelt's Plans

WASHINGTON, Sept. 20 (AP)—Indications arose tonight that the House Farm Bloc was reconciled to foregoing an upward revision of parity in the anti-inflation bill in the wake of President Roosevelt's disapproval but the Senate farm group was undecided on its course.

Chairman Fulmer (D-S.C.) of the House Agriculture committee issued a detailed statement of its stand, expressing hope that the president, in calculating parity, would include farm labor costs but making no further demand that this requirement be written into the act.

Will Consider Amendments

A special Senate agriculture subcommittee headed by Senator Thomas (D-Okla.) will meet tomorrow morning before debate opens on the floor to decide whether to press amendments for a new parity base and other steps in the farmers' interests. At the same time the House rules committee will decide on the procedure under which the House will start consideration of the bill Tuesday. Leaders were confident of final enactment by the president's Oct. 1 deadline.

The Banking committees of both chambers handled the respective bills but the House agriculture committee, reciting that it was "charged with the responsibility of reporting to the Congress on matters relating to agricultural production and the welfare of the producers of the nation," sent its statement to congressmen and to the president and other officials as well.

Roosevelt's Plans Unknown

It said that "in the calculation of parity prices, it is hoped the president will stand by the plain language of his message to the Congress on September 7, 1942, namely, that parity prices 'must include all costs of production, including the cost of labor.'" The committee asserted that since the base period on which parity usually is computed, 1909-14, farm wage rates have gone up more than 100 per cent, industrial wages approximately 300 per cent.

The committee reiterated the warning of the farm group that a reduction of prices below production costs could "bring about a critical shortage of the food and fiber necessary for our armed forces, our civilian population and allies."

The "present threat of inflation has not been brought about by any increase in farm prices," the committee contended, but "rather it has been retarded by the enormous increase in production which the farmers have voluntarily brought about."

CIO Announces Costs
On the other hand the CIO, in its periodical review, asserted that increased prices had cost the American people $9,000,000,000 since January, 1941, and that in July of this year alone increases cost $920,000,000. Then it asserted:

"Principal rise has been in uncontrolled farm prices, which have gone well above parity."

Price control and wage stabilization are part of the whole anti-inflation program "which must be enforced on all fronts at the same time," the CIO said.

The question of wage control in the anti-inflation bill promised major debate in the Senate.

The bill provides that by Nov. 1 the president shall issue executive orders stabilizing wages and farm prices at the Sept. 15 levels, as nearly as practicable. Wage rates could not be reduced except to correct gross inequities.

Southern Legion Posts Accused of Barring Negroes

KANSAS CITY, Sept. 20 (AP)—American Legion posts in the south were assailed today at the organization's national convention for discriminating against negro war veterans.

Ambrose Page, a negro veteran from St. Louis, accused the Legion in Arkansas, Florida, Louisiana, South Carolina and Texas with refusing to issue charters for negro posts.

He made the accusation in trying to find out what happened to a resolution he wanted to bring before the 1,500 delegates on the subject.

The Internal Organization committee reported it had sent the resolution to the Constitutional Amendments committee because it called for constitutional amendments. "The Constitutional committee explained that it had reached it too late for inclusion in its report to the convention."

National Commander Lynn U. S. Slamaugh settled the argument by sending the proposal back to the Internal Organization committee for further study.

up from the grass roots of our country young men of merit without any outside influence being brought to bear."

He assailed civilians seeking a short-cut to officer ranks, declaring his own answer to them is "go right down to the nearest recruiting station and hold up your right hand. That's the first step in becoming a soldier. Then qualify yourself by your own ability to be recommended to an officers' candidate school."

Hershey

Among those not deferred as being "essential" men in "essential activity," calls are to follow this order so far as local boards find it practicable to do so and still meet their quotas:

Order of Selection
First, single men without dependents; second, single men with dependents, according to the number of dependents and degree of dependency; third, childless men with wives supporting themselves or capable of doing so; fourth, married men with children, according to number and degree of dependency.

National selective service has bolstered this arrangement by directing state draft headquarters to direct their best to see that no local board calls married men while other boards in the state still have single men available.

34 Essential Occupations

In the field of occupational deferment, local boards have been furnished for a guidance a list of thirty-four activities deemed essential to the war program but they must determine for themselves if a particular man is so essential to his business as to merit deferment.

Boards also have orders that each occupational deferment must be reviewed after six months. The period of deferment may be reduced or extended, according to circumstances.

In one case, local boards were directed to discontinue occupational deferment of men who left their jobs unless they could show that their departure was not adverse to the war effort. This directive was applied only to loggers and non-ferrous metals miners in 12 western states who were virtually "frozen" in their work by the manpower commission.

The army and navy, to help ease the inroads on important industries, announced jointly that men granted occupational deferment could no longer be commissioned or accepted for enlistment without the consent of their local draft boards.

Reject Newspapermen

The army-navy policy statement included newspaper employees among those who would be rejected unless they had written releases from their employers, if they were key men, or from their local draft boards if they were not key men.

One type of deferment, that permitted men who applied for commissions has been discontinued. If these men are granted commissions after being inducted as privates, the army allows them to accept discharge.

The number of men available for service has been increased by lowering physical and educational standards as well as by tightening up on deferments for dependency and occupation.

Bethlehem Signs Labor Contract

NEW YORK, Sept. 20. Union officials described the agreement, which provides for an average wage increase of seven per cent, as the most inclusive contract ever reached in the shipbuilding industry. The increase averages eight cents an hour.

The pact, which applies to every Bethlehem yard in which the union has won collective bargaining elections, set minimum wages of $1.20 an hour for mechanics and 80.5 cents an hour for unskilled workers. It also specified maintenance of union membership and a voluntary check-off of union dues, as well as prohibiting strikes and lockouts.

John George Horvath of Hendersson, Md., is the Maryland winner of the 1942 college scholarship awarded annually by SSC to an outstanding high school graduate, a member of the Future Farmers of America, in each of the states of Maryland, Delaware, Virginia, and West Virginia. Each scholarship must be applied toward the student's expenses at his state agricultural college. This fall Horvath is entering the College of Agriculture, University of Maryland, where he will study agricultural education.

During his four years in high school, Horvath was a student of vocational agriculture, his projects including the raising of swine, tomatoes, and other farm crops. He served his local chapter of Future Farmers of America in various capacities during his high school career, and was state winner in FFA's 1941 public speaking contest. He also served as president of the senior class and president of the local Methodist Youth Fellowship. His athletic activities included membership on the soccer and softball teams.

Harold Gum of Arboreale, W. Va., and William D. Walker of Farmville, Va., are winners in their home states.

The awards are made to FFA members on the basis of character, scholarship, and leadership.

Helps Mule to Walk

KANSAS CITY (AP)—Jim Pansell has rigged a "mule walker," patterned after those old-fashioned "baby-walkers" with wheels and seat, so that his crippled mule can learn to walk once more. The animal lost the use of its legs while ill of sleeping sickness. Now it can be seen almost any day, grazing in the pasture in its "walker."

DRUG STORE

★ We compound Prescriptions. And we are proud of it. We have no quarrel with those scores that feature wide variety of general merchandise, for they do have their place. But our policy is, and always has been, to put the accent on PRESCRIPTION DRUGS.

The compounding of prescriptions is our primary interest. And because we handle a great many of them, our stocks are uniformly fresh and potent. On our shelves are many items rare and difficult to obtain. That's why physicians direct patients to bring prescriptions here for accurate compounding.

Another Reminder Of A Tax Crime

REPORT FROM ANNAPOLIS that the surplus in the general fund of the state treasury is zooming to record-breaking proportions is another reminder of one of the worst political crimes ever inflicted upon the citizens of Maryland.

The crime was the unnecessary boosting of the state income tax at the astounding rate of 500 per cent at a time when federal exactions were enormous and prospects were that heavy increases were in store. In fact, the crime dated farther back than that because, in spite of the fact that the voters of the state decisively rejected this added impost at the 1940 election, Governor O'Connor forced this burdensome requirement through the legislature.

But, the income tax might have been tolerated if it had been kept upon a reasonable basis. That, however, was not done. It was skyrocketed 500 per cent. The excuse given was fear of a possible deficit and a desire to balance the budget. That, of course, was a commendable objective. But the objective was flagrantly oversteered and, so far as anybody has been able to fathom, purposely so.

The purpose was to give the governor, in whose bonnet the bee of a second term was already buzzing despite his gesture for a single gubernatorial term, the opportunity of slashing the rate and thus being able to point with affected pride to something done in behalf of the taxpayers. If there was any other purpose, nobody has been able to detect it and any confession now that a mistake had been made in estimates has long since been offset by the fact that no real effort was made to correct the error when it became self-evident. The prospective reduction the governor has been talking about would not in fact be a reduction in taxes. It would be simply returning to the people something belonging to them and something that should never have been taken from them in the first place.

Considerable propaganda has come from executive quarters at Annapolis about state economy put into effect. The excessive surplus itself is referred to as having been made possible through such economy moves, but never has the excessive income tax been given the credit it deserves in that respect. And nobody has ever heard of any reduction in state jobholders, 530 of whom were added to the state payroll and unnecessarily so according to statements made by independent state taxpayers' organizations.

Nor has there been any realistic accounting of real economy. The state has gone along on the same old basis, continuing useless and ornamental functions, and taking on new jobholders in the strengthening of a state political machine all the while the world has been burning, defense and war requirements have mounted feverishly and the people have been groaning under a heavy load of total taxation.

What Maryland needs in state management is less personal partisan manipulation at the expense of the public and more regard for the condition and interests of the people. Citizens will have a chance to reverse this situation at the November election.

Application Shows In Court Decisions

THE BEST DECISIONS of the United States supreme court have been issued by justices who applied themselves to their high calling. While all the great jurists of this great court did not lead a cloistered existence, shutting themselves away from the world, most of them did. An exception was Charles Evans Hughes, who resigned to accept a political nomination.

Recently Justice Roberts absented himself from his duties for a time to report on why the American forces were surprised at Pearl Harbor. But the general policy of public activity outside the court is destructive of the people's confidence in the court. Some of the New Deal appointees have made political speeches. These same men engage right along in the intrigues and machinations of practical politicians. Justice Murphy has lately been serving with the army, a fact which is of little help to the army unless he resigns from the court, and of less help to the prestige of the court. The president makes no effort to suppress reports that he intends to assign nonlegal duties to some members of the court.

The fault lies with the court. The president has little regard for it as one of the equal divisions of government. He tried once to pack it to get the kind of decisions that the politicians wanted. But the justices themselves are in position to uphold the dignity and importance of the court. They cannot be removed by the president. They are their own masters. They can apply themselves to their supreme responsibilities, if they have the courage and resolution to do so, without fear of executive reprisal.

Traitorous Vichy Nears a Showdown

A GENERAL SHOWDOWN grows rapidly nearer regarding the traitorous Vichy regime, and that is well. Hitler is said to have sent a personal message to Petain, demanding the French fleet. Laval, threatened with his downfall and the substitution of an even more pliant Doriot, frenziedly and foolishly objected to American air raids on German-occupied French territory.

Allied officials had learned that Vichy officials were permitting the fueling of Japanese submarines in Madagascar and that Nazi agents were being harbored. The action to take over the remainder of that island was fully approved by the United States State Department.

Lately the Vichy leaders have tried to outdo each other in their dance of death. Summoned now and again into the presence of the German military ruler of Paris, they scuttle back to what is technically known as unoccupied France, and there concoct new ways to stay their inevitable end.

Laval had the Vichy radio beam broadcasts toward Canada, urging the Quebec French to "rebel against your English-speaking masters." Petain fumbles about with the pathetic doddering of senility. He clings to his dream of a French fascist state, and rejects every reality. But at last Washington is getting closer to the more practical London viewpoint regarding Vichy.

The Excess Of Cooks

"ANOTHER THING we don't understand," observes the editor of the Fayetteville, N. C., Observer, "is how suspected spies have so much 'information' about the doings of our government, when it is almost impossible for a man on legitimate business to get routine information."

Yes, this does seem a mystery with respect to the alleged spies, but not so much in the case of the man on legitimate business. His plight is just one of the results of there being too many cooks—and near cooks—in the Washington kitchens and too many of the kitchens.

Those crackbox weather predictors who "know" what kind of winter we're going to have but can't say so must be finding the duration pretty hard to endure.

After seeing newsreels of Commandos in action and Rangers in training, Junior wants to come into the house by way of the chimney.

It's the fellow who branches out too quickly that usually finds himself out on a limb.

The Browser's Bookshelf

By MARSHALL MASLIN

"The Cup and the Sword" by Alice Tisdale Hobart (Bobbs-Merrill) is one of those long sprawling, thickly populated novels, set against the American scene—that, bit by bit, express the spirit and drama of age.

The scene, in this case, is the wine country of California—the juice country of the San Joaquin, the white wine area of the Livermore valley, and the lovely green and gold slopes of the Napa Valley. This setting is peopled by the great family of old Jean-Philippe Rameau for whom wine was more than a business—it was a symbol of God and a symbol of the common nature of man.

The novel opens as Old Rameau's granddaughter Elizabeth comes home from England in the first years of the great drought called prohibition; it ends with the great rescue for the wine men of Repeal. And the story Mrs. Hobart tells is of the battle between men and within men for survival and decency of spirit. Here are weak, strong, selfish, aspiring, brave, vivid and dramatic characters, set forth in a host of incidents.

This is in many ways a remarkable novel, vigorous, rich in feeling, and honest. It is not without defects—occasional jumpiness mars the smooth flow of the story, and the multitude of characters is sometimes confusing. But except for that, "The Cup and the Sword" is a solid achievement.

The Browser's heart these days, however, is with such books as O. D. Gallagher's "Action in the East" (Doubleday Doran), a magnificent book by a man who escaped from the sinking "Repulse," saw Singapore fall, rode from Rangoon to Mandalay, lived with the great Fighting Tigers of the Orient and saw them fight.

A rare character, this Gallagher. He admires intelligence, foresight, bravery. He hates swank, guff and dope—and these admirations and rejections are everywhere present in this living pages.

His conclusion: "If I may venture a forecast, I say that Japan will be beaten by the roaring air-borne might of the United States and the Empire. Bombers, unequalled in the world, will one day (not so distant) pound the Japanese in uniform with unrelenting harshness. I do not think it should be necessary for us to send our fighting men back into the jungles and swamps where they have fought, and where so many have died, with such courage. Our fighting forces should begin the decontamination of the East in Japan itself. Japan should be the battleground. Thousand-bomber raids to devastate her cities would soon cause the Japanese to doubt their beliefs of divine origin."

The Browser is definitely prejudiced in favor of such ideas.

The Browser also likes another book, of a very different kind. . . . a woman's story of thirty years on a Montana sheep ranch. It is "Golden Fleece" (Houghton Mifflin), by Hughie Call, who went from a Texas city as the wife of Tom Call—and learned almost at once that sheep care before everything else, before children, wives, birth and death, in the sheep country. As Mrs. Call wrote about the South-west cattlelands last year in "No Life for a Lady," here Mrs. Call gives us the year and the life of the man who produces wool and mutton. She gives us everything from shepherds to dogs, from shearing to lambing, from weariness of heart to great joy and content. The last thing the Browser wants to do is live on a sheep ranch, but he sure does wish he could be a "dude" for a couple of months on the Call's Montana ranch. . . . Enough for this week from Marsh Maslin.

THE BROWSER.

Nazi Strength Is Sorely Weakened By Russian Drive

By PAUL MALLON

WASHINGTON, Sept. 20—Hitler skimmed the last of the cream of his military strength for the conquest of Stalingrad. What he produced there, therefore, offers a worthwhile estimate of what power he has left.

He used about 500,000 men in the drive. The Russian press sometimes thought the Reds were facing a million, but their latest count would be around half that sum.

These were not used all at the same time. Flying wedges of about 75,000 troops manned the front attacking lines. They were withdrawn every few days for a rest and another 75,000 replaced them.

Not more than a million Nazi troops are strung along the vast expanses of the rest of the front line, from the Arctic to the Caucasus.

The best troops were, of course, called into the Stalingrad front and the million holding the other sections of the line represent what was left, some being newly trained, some Italians, Rumanians, and Finns, who have been practicing for months under German supervision.

Italians the Worst

About 400,000 Italian troops have been re-trained by the Germans. Yet these are still about the worst of the lot. The Finns and Rumanians are much more highly regarded.

Behind this front line are about a million men in what might be called the third class troops, the reserves to relieve the front lines.

On the only other Nazi fighting line, in Libya, Rommel has never had more than 100,000, including Italians, although published reports of his strength sometimes exaggerated this figure by fifty percent or more.

So you see the total German military machine now in this third year of the war, is not the same vast efficient striking force which went spinning through Poland, Belgium, Holland and France.

In actual fighting power, it seems to number only a little over 2,500,000, of which the 500,000 facing Stalingrad can still be classified as the crack troops (and these have been rapidly used up).

Most on Police Duty

While the Nazis still talk about their army of 8,000,000 or 10,000,000 men, about three-fourths of this vaunted strength represents fourth-class troops doing police duty in occupied regions. This fourth class includes many soldiers who have recovered from wounds, the very young, the untrained, and the over-age.

At Stalingrad, Hitler also produced about 1,500 planes, representing practically all his remaining air striking power. It is still a good air force, but far from the 5,000 planes Goering used to brag about.

Shortage of pilots, as well as materials, British bombings, and sabotage, probably has cut Hitler's air-arm to this extent. Pilots cannot be made in a day, or a year, and the training which gave the original air force a superior efficiency will never be possible again during this war.

We have been fooled too often by reports and expectations of German disintegration to relax our efforts even in the face of these encouraging trustworthy figures. But they show that the war is not necessarily being lost by us on that front. They remove cause for discouragement.

Air Force Weakened

The British have been putting out a sentence or two every night about German bombing raids on Britain, finally announcing a few days back that 400 civilians had been killed in the last month during these raids.

These nightly Nazi forays seem to have no military objective. They are not aimed at industrial centers or munitions works and, apparently, have no continuing plan.

About fifteen or twenty German bombers come over and hit a town, generally a point near the coast. For a while they concentrated on cathedral cities and those of purely historical value. Most of the British 400 casualties were suffered in one town one night.

The Germans are merely feebly and blindly punching at non-military British objectives to keep as many British planes as possible at home at night, and away from continental raids.

The weakness of the effort is a further evidence that German striking power is not what it was.

It may be different this winter when Hitler can use what is left of those 1,500 planes from Stalingrad for night attacks on Britain.

A Useful Adjective

From the Morgantown W. Va., Post

"Zamechatelno" is a Russian word. Translated into English it means "swell."

Now if the boys and girls of Russia are anything at all like their young American cousins, "zamechatelno," poor thing, must be worn to a frazzle. The useful adjective can be made to describe practically any sensation of joy, from mildest delight to wildest delight. It saunters through the language like a smelly goat in a flock of snowy lambs.

Wouldn't it be nice if, just for a change, all the American "swells" could trade places with all the Russian "zamechatelno's"? Then, after the little adjectives had regained their health and vigor once more, they could be returned to their native vocabularies.

That strikes us as being a dog-goned zamechatelno idea.

The Sun Still Shines

By Thomas Dreier in Your Life Magazine

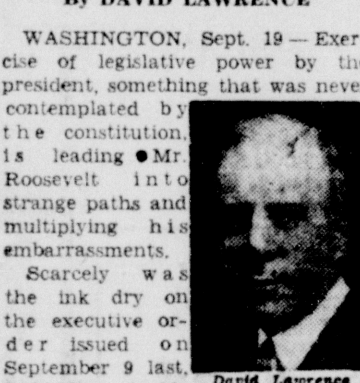

When you are inclined to be pessimistic about the future, brighten up your mind with a few fundamentals. First of all, there will be millions of people who will need things. We'll have in this country the greatest productive machine ever devised. We'll have skilled workmen, plenty of raw materials, ships to deliver finished goods and to bring back whatever we need. But we'll have to accept changes.

The old system which showed its weakness during the terrible years of unemployment needs changing. But there is nothing sacred about anything merely because it is old. Only that is sacred which serves. New commercial practices, new management ideas will take the place of older ones that didn't work so well.

Men with flexible minds will find a new world with great opportunities ready to be grasped. The sun will continue to shine in the future.

Morning Motto

Among the smaller duties of life I hardly know of one more important than that of not praising where praise is not due.—SYDNEY SMITH.

David Lawrence

WASHINGTON, Sept. 19—Exercise of legislative power by the president, something that was never contemplated by the constitution, is leading Mr. Roosevelt into strange paths and multiplying his embarrassments.

Scarcely was the ink dry on the executive order issued on September 9 last, forbidding double time and premium pay except on the seventh consecutive day of work, when the whole thing is virtually nullified by another executive order dated September 17. An entirely different formula is announced.

The new order is issued without explanation to the public as to the reasons for the reversal or change. But it develops that instead of a flat prohibition of double time or premium pay for the seventh day, this kind of compensation will be permitted whenever the secretary of labor thinks it should. In other words, the president has delegated the law-making function with respect to wages to a member of his cabinet.

No Explanation

No explanation has been issued as to what statutes give the president the right to fix wages or to delegate to anybody else the right to do so.

The new executive order appears to have been issued as a sop to the labor unions that doubtless protested. It makes the federal government the judge of when the double time or premium pay may be paid and no standard as to what shall constitute the basis for compensation is stated in the order. It is as plainly unlawful a piece of administration as has been issued by the New Deal in all its years of power, and any labor union that sought to challenge it in the courts or any individual who sought to recover wages denied him would find it not very difficult to make a constitutional case before an impartial tribunal.

Agency Is Judge

The language of the new order makes a government agency—the department of Labor—the arbitrary judge of when overtime payments shall be made.

"In any industry or occupation in which the secretary of Labor finds that a wage stabilization agreement approved by a government department, or agency is operating satisfactorily," it reads, "or in any industry or occupation in which the secretary finds that the nature and exigencies of operations make such action necessary or advisable for the successful prosecution of the war, the secretary may determine that any or all provisions of this order shall not apply to such industry or occupation or to any classes of employees therein."

In other words, if a labor union protests vigorously enough, it can secure exemption from the order and keep on charging double time for the seventh day every double time for any or all holidays—contradicting the terms of the original order—just so long as the secretary of Labor thinks it's all right.

Not Accountable

The secretary is not accountable to Congress for such exercise of power, and there need be no standards for the application of the order excepting those which on the spur of the moment might fit the case. It seems curious that the office of the president of the United States went to all the trouble of writing one order on September 9 and then taking it all back and changing the system just a few days later. The simplest way to have written the order in the first place might have been as follows:

"On and after October 1, the president will fix any and all wages in America as he pleases, union contracts or agreements to the contrary notwithstanding and he will delegate the power to anybody he pleases."

This is a shorter form and conveys the meaning much more directly. It means that pressure groups can apply their influence as usual, and that's about what the new executive order provides anyway.

Windbag Is Shelved

From the Johnstown, Pa., Tribune

The defeat of Gov. Eugene Talmadge in the Democratic primaries in Georgia is something that we can accept without rancor. We know little about Attorney General Ellis Arnall, who won the Democratic gubernatorial nomination over the incumbent, but almost anyone would have been preferable to the windbag now in possession of the executive mansion in Augusta.

The Democratic nomination, of course, is equivalent to election in the Cracker state, so Arnall's friends can begin practice in addressing him as "governor." Unfortunately for Georgia, the defeat of Talmadge offers no assurance that the state has heard the last of his oratory or that religious prejudice and racial hatred are to become dead issues.

The outcome of the primaries, however, assures the public that the rantings of Talmadge hereafter will be "unofficial."

Tax Angles That Need Attention

By Lawrence Stern in The Magazine Of Wall Street

The political game of sticking the corporations with ever higher taxes, while postponing the painful decision to assess the voting public for a realistic share of the soaring costs of all time, appears just about played out to the ultimate limit.

Thus far in the war Congress has approached taxes pretty much as it did in peace. First, pile more taxes on the corporations. Second, see if a bit more can be extracted from the rich. Third, boost the ante on the middle classes. Last of all, fearfully and tentatively explore the idea of a sales tax or gross income tax that would take money out of the pockets of the lower

Maine Election Injects Some Pep In Quiet Campaign

By CHARLES P. STEWART
Central Press Columnist

WASHINGTON.—The Republican complexion of Maine's election result has put a little pep into the pending political campaign. It needed considerable gingering up to make it properly exciting, and even yet it isn't very thrillingly so.

The old saying "As Maine goes, so goes the nation," probably doesn't mean much, except that Charles P. Stewart, the Pine Tree commonwealth does its voting a bit ahead of the other states and its periodical verdicts generally are regarded as somewhat prophetic of what's to follow. However, the theory's more or less believed in. Consequently G. O. P. candidates throughout the country have been encouraged to put a modicum of additional jazz into their efforts and Democratic aspirants have been slightly alarmed into increasing their own activities.

As to the War

The fact is that, so far as the war's concerned, it makes comparatively little difference which party makes the strongest showing at the polls in November.

It's highly important to have the right kind of legislators on Capitol Hill during the next couple of years, as well as later. It doesn't greatly matter, though, which partisan group of 'em is in a majority.

If anything the Republicans are more vociferously militant than the Democrats. I don't mean to imply that they're more genuinely patriotic. The point is that the Democrats take themselves as behind their administration, whereas the Republicans feel the urge to HOLLAR about their super-co-operative-ness in the present emergency.

Nobody says much as to the chance that the incoming Congress will have a deal to do with subsequent peacemaking.

Post-War Talk

There's plenty of talk relative to post-war problems but it's principally purely argumentative—not the variety of oratory that requires maximum vocalization and eloquence.

Nevertheless, suppose the war peters out in 1943 or early in 1944 and international terms have to be agreed on. It won't be so spectacular as the existing situation, but it'll call for some sure-enough statesmanship. If it's unavailable there's liable to be another League of Nations, followed by what's followed the last one.

Readjustment Job

Wartime necessarily involves a certain amount of internal near dictatorship. It'll be up to the next Congress or the next one, afterward, or a still later one, to readjust things back to a 100 per cent Democratic basis.

It'll be awful if Capitol Hill, in the meantime, permits things to become dictatorially frozen.

Possibilities of a fourth presidential term aren't discussed very audibly, but there's quite a lot of whispering about 'em.

It's a mere matter of guesswork, for F. D. R. doesn't express himself on the subject. He can't very well do so under the circumstances. That's dope, though, to the effect that he doesn't WANT another term—that he's too good a Democrat to believe that it would be a desirability. Yet, if the war's still raging when 1944's nomination date rolls around, can he save himself from being drafted?

What'll It Mean?

What'll this year's election result signify, anyway?

If it's strongly Democratic, despite Maine, will that mean a popular indorsement of today's administration policies?—a dictatorial victory on the supposition that that's what we're heading into? Or will it mean that we don't believe in a reversal at such a juncture—whatever the ultimate consequences?

But if the result is strongly Republican?

Will that mean a verdict against F. D.?

Or will it mean the public's belief that F. D.'s okay, but that an incompetent Congress (despite its Democratic label) has botched its job, in spite of him? Will it mean, in short, that the public's "FER" him, regardless of congressional party lines—for him as a presidential individual? For a fourth term, if necessary—or any old thing?

Perhaps history'll provide answers to some of these questions in a couple of centuries or so.

Income masses whose vote is the biggest of all political prizes.

Even if Congress were composed solely of tax experts, capable of ignoring political considerations entirely, the problem confronting it would be complex and difficult. It would be approaching that problem it would have to take into consideration the Treasury's revenue needs, inflation, control, the social equity of tax apportionment and the vital relationship of taxes to the productivity and survival of our capitalist system.

It is accurate to say that the survival of a healthy private enterprise system and inflation control have had wholly inadequate attention from Congress and the Treasury.

These four considerations—survival of a healthy private enterprise system and inflation control—have had wholly inadequate attention from Congress and the Treasury.

neither hear, see, nor respond to anything going on about him in the classroom.

At right times and in the right places, that form of concentration can be invaluable. Without it the world never would have had its great musicians, artists, architects, scientists, statesmen, and inventors.
Nevertheless, life is such that it is necessary for us to do many things with others and to pay attention, therefore, to things to which they pay attention. This is especially true in the classroom. The most effective student there concentrates well on what is being explained, directed or discussed, with the result that he does not have to do much studying, perhaps, outside of class.

A Wasteful Habit
But to sit in class and dream, with the attention a thousand miles away, is to cultivate wasteful habits, missing many of the most essential things that are being said and done at that moment. In consequence, the dreamer must employ extra time outside of class, getting what he might have got easily at class time.
Some students specialize in classroom daydreaming. One will dream while the teacher makes the assignment, thinking: "Oh, I can get it from Frank tonight." Night comes,

and it requires considerable time.
Another student may not even take the trouble to ask anybody about the assignment given while he dreamed, excusing himself from study in the evening on the grounds
he doesn't know what is to be done.
Moreover, the classroom day-dreamer is disposed to be a day-dreamer, also, over his books while at his homework. Such a one may find himself wanting when examinations come and may even become a complete failure.

Some Practical Suggestions
To students in high school and college, let me offer some suggestions:

1. Discipline yourself to pay strict attention to all assignments, explanations and discussions in class.
The moment you find yourself wandering away, bring yourself back by the nap of the neck, as it were.
Keep eternally at this, however much you must struggle with yourself. Don't let yourself be a parasite to depend on a classmate to give you the assignment.
2. When you sit down to do your lessons, make it a habit to recall the high points of all that you learned in classes that day. Go to your homework at a regular time and place. Let nothing interrupt

you. Practice concentration, even though you can do it for only ten or fifteen minutes at a stretch. Better to walk about than to sit and dream. Still better to sit and compel yourself to concentrate.

Solving Parent Problems
Q. What is a good time for my eight-year-old boy who is a poor reader to practice at reading this summer?
A. Usually during the first hour or two following lunch.

Glenn Miller Pays Tribute to His Fans

By way of showing my appreciation to that legion of "sep-cats," "joes of jive," and all the "rag-cutters" from Natchez to Mobile and Memphis to St. Joe, Glenn Miller has had written into the script of "Orchestra Wives," his latest picture for Twentieth-Century-Fox, a tribute to his fans.
In one scene in "Orchestra Wives," currently at the Strand theater, Miller addresses a radio microphone as follows:
"It's not the carriage trade that buys our bread and butter and keeps us going. It's the average guy and his gal who listens to the "juke-boxes." It's those little cutie-pies who put their nickels into the record machines to who mwe owe our thanks. And here's for thanking them!"

"For a long time," explains Miller,
"I've been wanting to thank the folks all over the country who've made possible the success of our band. It occurred to me that I might do it in the picture, and have it fit into the film properly. Producer LeBaron thought it was a swell idea, and had the 'thanks' written into the screen play."

Hillary Brooke Stars
In "Lone Rider" Film
The shortest distance between New York city and Hollywood is by way of Paris, Brussels, and Milan, according to Hillary Brooke, who has the feminine lead opposite George Houston in "The Lone Rider in Frontier Fury," coming tomorrow to the Embassy theater.

Miss Brooke, who came to the screen after a varied career in directing and designing, originally had no ambition to act, even when her graduating class named her "pre-tiest girl."

In New York Miss Brooke studied dietetics, then threw up "vitamin chasing and dashed off to Europe."
Molyneux, top-notch fashion expert, liked her work — but in designing clothes — and gave her a job. Later tiring of the shears, pins, and mannequins, Miss Brooke decided on a new career, this time, acting.

With Molyneux's aid she secured a small part in a dramatic production. This led to others, and the young American created a flurry in theatrical circles abroad.

Legitimate roles in Paris, Brussels, and Milan playhouses kept her scurrying throughout the continent;
but finally she settled down in France to make a movie.

Producers sighted her in the French film and broke some sort of a record by overlooking foreign types and hiring a statuesque native American leading woman. Home from gad-about adventures in Europe, Miss Brooke headed for Hollywood.

Garden Picture Has Abbott, Costello

Bud Abbott and Lou Costello are starred in "Ride 'Em Cowboy," now at the Garden theater. Included in the cast are Dick Foran, Johnny Mack Brown and the Merry Macs.
The co-feature at the Garden is "Doctors Don't Tell," with John
Beal, Florence Rice and Edward Norris.

is a wife's eye view of the men who play the nation's love songs in gomery, Ann Rutherford and Glenn Miller and his Band.

Alverna Carnachi, Patricia Gibb, Dorothy Donahy, Mary A. Schaefer, Anita Nevy, Patricia Carney, Mary Nies, Irene Stallings, Almeda Back and Dorothy Wiesenmiller showed how the information conveyed by these writings depended upon eyewitnesses, while Jeannine Mock, Helen Smith, Ella Nora Coyle and Eileen Brinker testified to the wide and rapid spread of these writings.

Anthony Beck, Raymond Ruppenkamp and Paul Birch spoke on the authorship of the Gospels and other books of the New Testament. Short accounts of the lives of the authors of the New Testament were given by Raymond Russell, Joseph Counihan, George Rogan, Alfred De Martino, Raymond Gebhart, Thomas Mullaney, Ronald Brinker and William Turner.

The apple tree is subject to attack by a number of scale insects which are frequently brought into the garden on the feet of birds or by other insects.

As illustrated in the Garden-Graph, the oyster shell scale, about one-tenth of an inch long, is brown and shaped somewhat like an oyster. The scales cluster on the bark and when the infestation is heavy the bark becomes entirely covered. This results in weakening the tree; the leaves become smaller and are speckled with yellow. If the scale is not arrested, the trees often die.

To control these insects use a dormant oil spray, or lime sulphur. If any scales are missed by the dormant spray, use a contact insecticide when the yellowish young are hatching and active. As they only crawl about for several hours a day or two before a waxy scale coating begins to protect them, it is necessary to spray while they are crawling about.

Cards and Dodgers Divide Doubleheaders

Redbirds Remain Two and a Half Games in Front

Cubs Defeat St. Louis 3-0 after Cooper Wins Twenty-first 1-0

By CHARLES DUNKLEY

CHICAGO, Sept. 20 (AP)—The fiercely battling St. Louis Cardinals split a doubleheader with the Chicago Cubs before a crowd of 38,519 today and thus failed to increase their two and one-half game lead over the Brooklyn Dodgers in the National League stretch drive.

The Dodgers, also split their doubleheader with Philadelphia. Morton Cooper, the Cards' ace right hander, registered his twenty-first victory of the season in defeating the Cubs 1 to 0, allowing only four hits in the first game. Claude Passeau, in rare form, held the bewildered Redbirds to five scattered hits as the Cubs took the second, 3 to 0. It was Cooper's ninth shutout of the year—and Passeau's nineteenth victory.

Warneke Gives Seven Hits

Leon Lon Warneke rattled only seven hits to his former teammates in the opener, but a thrilling double steal enabled the Cards to score their only run that gave them their sixth straight victory and their thirty-fourth in forty-one games, besides their one-hundredth of the season.

One safe hit and a walk were all the Redbirds required to score in the fourth inning of the first game. Walker Cooper grounded out to Lon to open the inning. Then Johnny Hopp drew a pass and promptly raced to third base as George Kurowski sent his second hit bouncing into left field.

Martin Marion lined to Bobby Sturgeon, the Cub second baseman, but then while Warneke was pitching to Mort Cooper, Kurowski sprinted for second. As Cub Catcher Chico Hernandez threw to head off Kurowski, Hopp broke for home from third base, then held up long enough to draw a throw to Stan Hack, the Cub third baseman. When this happened Hopp tore for the plate and dodged in past Hack's wide throw to the catcher.

Max Lanier Chased Cooper limited the Chicagoans to four hits and one walk and permitted only two men to reach third. He fanned nine Cubs.

In the second game, the Cubs drove Lefty Max Lanier to the showers in less than three innings when they scored their winning three runs.

Lanier was replaced by Murray Dickson. Manager Billy Southworth of the Cards used two other relief pitchers in an attempt to turn the tide without success.

The Cardinals left tonight for St. Louis to finish their remaining six games, two each with the Pirates, Cincinnati and Chicago. The scores:

NATIONAL PENNANT RACE AT A GLANCE

The St. Louis Cardinals and Brooklyn Dodgers both divided doubleheaders yesterday (Sunday) but it hardly could be called an even split.

Before those games the Cardinals needed a combination of seven St. Louis victories or Brooklyn defeats to clinch the National League pennant. Now the combination has been reduced to five.

The Redbirds returned home to face for six games. If they win five of them they're in, no matter if the Dodgers sweep all their remaining seven contests. The standings:

Brooklyn..... 97 50 2 1/2 7

Remaining schedule:
St. Louis—Sept. 21, 22 Pittsburgh; 23, 24 Cincinnati; 26, 27 Chicago.
Brooklyn—Sept. 21 Philadelphia; 22 New York; 23 Philadelphia; 24, 25 Boston; 26, 27 at Philadelphia.

Pair of Pitching Battles Divided By Yanks, Red Sox

World Champs Snatch First 2-1 but Lose Second by 3-2 Margin

NEW YORK, Sept. 20 (AP)—The New York Yankees and Boston Red Sox split a pair of pitching battles today with the world champions snatching the first 2 to 1 on a run in the ninth inning and losing the second 3 to 2 in the eighth.

Lou Finney batted in all Boston's runs in the nightcap, accounting for one with a double in the second inning and two on a single in the eighth.

Priddy batted in both New York runs in the first game. He doubled Joe Gordon home in the seventh and then brought in the deciding run with a long fly after Gordon had walked and Bill Dickey singled.

In that affair the Yanks were held to four hits by Joe Dobson and Oscar Judd while the Red Sox made seven, but the only Boston blow that counted was Ted Williams' thirty-fifth homer in the fourth. The scores:

Army All-Stars Humbled 14 to 7 By Chicago Bears

Crowd of 35,000 Sees Pro Loop Champs Win in Final Quarter

By BILL KING

BOSTON, Sept. 20 (AP)—The champion Chicago Bears, twice sparked by Halfback Hugh Gallenau, headed the National Professional Football League's wounds by humbling the Army All-Stars, 14-7, today before an overflow crowd of 35,000 spectators at Fenway park.

The crack soldier-footbalers held their own under unfavorable weather conditions during the first half and then, with a tremendous burst of power, again pulled even shortly after Gallenau, a former Stanford star, gave the professionals their first touchdown by intercepting Army aerialist that Captain Johnny Pingel tried to launch to Harold Van Every from the All-Stars' forty-five as the third period opened.

Before the period ended, the Army Stars, who had beaten the New York Giants and the Brooklyn Dodgers in five days, started a fifty-two yard scoring march after Quarterback Vic Spadaccini intercepted one of Chucin Charley O'Rourke's over-heads.

The drive, which ended with Norman Standley, who played for the Bears last season, going over from the three yard line, got underway when Steve Bagarus, once of Notre Dame, sped from midfield to the Chicago thirty yard line. Then he set the stage for Standley's scoring play by smashing seven yards for a first down.

Bears Start Moving

Nick Basca, late of Villanova and the Philadelphia Eagles, placed kicked the All-Stars into a 7-7 tie. As soon as the final quarter opened, the Bears indicated that the deadlock would not be of long duration. Standley kicked off to Ray Nolting, who shook off several and eluded every other soldier, except Harvey Johnson, ex-Mississippi State back, who dragged him down on the Army's thirty-eight-yard line.

A Bear, however, had been spotted offside and Nolting's run went for naught. But that disappointment merely served to incite the Bears to even greater efforts and, after Bill Geyer returned Standley's second kickoff to Chicago's twenty-five, they got rolling in high.

Two perfect passes from O'Rourke, sharpshooting in place of the injured Sid Luckman, to Left End Johnny Sigal made up most of the Bears' yardage as they went seventy-five for their winning touchdown, which Gallenau made from the one yard line on fourth down.

When Joe Stydahar, the place-kicking tackle, chalked up his second extra point, the All-Stars wilted noticeably. They made their only fumble of the game, by Johnson, on their nineteen-yard line three plays after Stydahar had kicked off to Stan Gervais, an Army end substitute.

All-Stars Get Furlough

But the Bears flubbed that wide open chance for, after Bill Osmanski and Nolting rushed for a first down only seven yards from the Soldiers' goal line, O'Rourke was smothered by three All-Stars as he tried to pass and the ball was knocked by his throwing hand and recovered by Army Guard Ralph Fife on the Army seven.

Johnson lost two, and then punted to Nolting. While the latter was returning it about four yards to the Soldiers' thirty-three, he became angered by the defensive tactics employed by rival Len Coffman. They tried to square off but their teammates intervened before a blow could be aimed, just a few seconds before time expired.

As soon as they returned to their dressing room, the All-Stars were ordered disbanded and each of the fifty-two was given a ten-day furlough.

Parsons Drops Second Straight Grid Battle

PARSONS, W. Va., Sept. 20.—The Parsons High Panthers absorbed their second straight defeat of the football season at Elkins last week, dropping a 40-0 decision to the Elkins High Tigers. Parsons bowed 19-0 to Buckhannon in its opener.

Elkins rolled up fifteen first downs in the Panthers' seven and scored two touchdowns in each of the first and third periods and single scores in the second and fourth. Crawford went over for two touchdowns while Keeling, Gibson, Rhodes and Kopke each tallied one point.

The Sportlight by GRANTLAND RICE

(Released by North American Newspaper Alliance)

The Big Controversy
I doubt that sport has known a greater nation-wide controversy than the Louis - Conn fight has brought about.

The main argument doesn't concern the possible or probable winner. It concerns the matter of paying out something like $135,000 to two soldiers in connection with an army emergency relief fund.

Those supporting Louis and the War department bring up these important points—

1. Louis risked his title twice for army and navy relief.
2. Louis has had an amazing record for sportsmanship. In the army, he finds himself heavily in debt to the income tax department. Mike Jacobs and Roxbury, his manager, Why not give him the chance to get at least partially out of debt?
3. He was made certain representations from a member of the War department that would cover the debt matter. Louis told me he thought this also included his income tax.
4. In the rush of things the War department made the original mistake, not Joe Louis.
5. Whatever happens the army emergency fund will net close to $500,000 for dependent families.
6. The whole show was started badly—but why not get all the money possible and forget the first mistakes?

The Other Side

Against this argument we have the following national feeling—

1. Too many fighting men, whose main business is the winning of the war, have been taken away from army and navy jobs to make relief money and promote morale.
2. Joe Louis and Billy Conn are now soldiers in the army. Why should they be paid $135,000 for what was started as a 100 per cent army emergency relief bout?
3. What about Bataan. What about Wake Island? What about the Solomon Islands? What about the army now in England, Libya—the flyers in China? What about the present and the coming casualties lists?
4. Joe Louis has had some tough financial breaks. So have millions of others. What about the others who have lost lives, arms, legs and eyes?
5. Are we really at war, or not?
6. How can any special soldier be singled out for consideration above all others?
7. Why should the fact that Joe Louis and Billy Conn owe their managers and promoters $135,000 enter into the present picture of a world at war, in the most vital war in world history?

The Battle Ahead

It is my belief, under all the existing tangles, that the fight should have been called off. I may be entirely wrong.

Many others, the majority, in complete honesty of opinion, have felt otherwise. They have felt that the earlier and hurried mistakes made can be handled for the benefit of all concerned, including the army emergency relief, which is the main factor, the main idea.

Many of them believe that the majority of the country will support Joe Louis and Billy Conn in their stands—especially after the promises made.

There is no question that these mistakes were natural and to be expected in such a rush affair. But it seemed to me that the fight had picked up too much dynamite to be carried on.

In the first place, it is sure to be a War department headache, which undoubtedly the War department can handle. In the second place, this will be the first time in his career, justly or unjustly, when Joe Louis will be under fire.

Being under fire is an old story for Mike Jacobs. Mike isn't bothered about this part of the story. Billy Conn was left almost entirely out of the picture.

Unfortunately, the fight was first presented as 100 per cent for the relief fund. Then there were certain debts supposed to be around $37,000 that had to be handled through previous War department agreements. Later these debts were moved up to $135,000. The ball park renting will approach $40,000. There will be other expenses totalling $75,000.

The cost in sight already is close to the $300,000 mark. If the fight grosses around $800,000 or a $1,000,000, there still will be a big fund left for army relief.

Everyone knows that relief benefits can't be held for nothing. But there is a national psychology involved when expenses reach such totals that happen to be something apart from the money going to dependent families.

The fight itself will be or should be one of the most interesting ever held. It should be something worth seeing. It is merely, or largely, a question of whether this money will be worth the repercussions that are sure to follow. These may be mild. But they may be extremely serious so far as the War department, the fighters and the promoter are concerned.

The gamble isn't a light one, on either side of the argument.

Redskins, Rams Win in Pro Loop

Washington Trims Steelers 28-14, Cleveland Whips Eagles 24-14

NEW YORK, Sept. 20 (AP)—While the National Professional Football League's defending champions, the Chicago Bears, were busy repulsing the Army All-Stars at Boston today in a war-benefit exhibition, a majority of the Bears' pro rivals engaged in skirmishes that counted in the standings.

After two Sundays of scattered play the Chicago Cardinals are atop the Western division with a single triumph and the Washington Redskins hold a similar position in the East with a similar record.

Washington, with Sammy Baugh doing the passing and Steve Juvik the running, smashed the Pittsburgh Steelers, 28 to 14, while the Cleveland Rams mastered the Philadelphia Eagles, 24 to 14.

Juvik, last year with Notre Dame, counted twice for the Redskins against the Steelers, once on a thirty-nine yard run but he wasn't only newcome to reach the headlines. Bill Dudley, Virginia's All-America back of 1941, rated eighty-five yards for a Pittsburgh counter in the third.

Jack Jacobs, Indian halfback at Oklahoma a year ago, uncorked a forty-eight yard pass for one of Cleveland's touchdowns while the veteran Parker Hall fired a fifty-seven yard floater for one of the Eagles' markers. Today's scores:

Delroit Tigers Shade Tribe 6-5 After 2-0 Loss

Mel Harder Pitches Two-Hitter in Opener; Boudreau Chased by Ump

DETROIT, Sept. 20 (AP)—The Detroit Tigers and the Cleveland Indians, battling to finish fourth in the American League standings, divided a double hit today, the Tigers rallying to take the second game, 6 to 5, and the Tribe winning the opener, 2 to 0, behind Mel Harder's two-hit hurling.

Dutch Meyer's single scored Roger Cramer with the winning run in the ninth inning of the nightcap after the Indians had put over two runs in their half of the inning on Ken Keltner's single, four walks, a passed ball and a stolen base.

Virgil (Fire) Trucks, third Tiger hurler, pitched to only one batter and was credited with his fourteenth victory while Vern Kennedy was charged with the loss. The Indians used eighteen players in the game and Manager Lou Boudreau was chased in the third inning by Umpire Cal Hubbard for protesting too vigorously on a decision at third base. The scores:

FIGURING MATCH POINTS
MANY DUPLICATE players do not understand how "match points" are calculated in a pair tournament. Actually it is quite simple, when once the basic principle is learned. Knowing it should improve anybody's game on an occasional hand. In a nutshell, you get a match point whenever you beat another pair. The worst score on a deal gets you zero. If you beat one pair, you get one point; if you beat two pairs, two points; if you beat three pairs, three points, and so on. Consequently, each deal is as important as any other deal for the same number of match points comes from it. That is the main difference between this game and total point play like rubber bridge—there are no "unimportant" deals.

Pair No.	Plus Score	M. Pts.	N-S	E-W
1	4	920	5	3
2	6	50	2	5
3	1	450	3	0
4	3	980	6	1
5	5	300	0	6
6	7	480	4	4
7	2	100	1	2

That table will furnish an example. It is the figuring on one deal of a duplicate. With North-South not vulnerable, the game bonus, to be added to the value of the tricks, is 300, and the small slam bonus 500. At the various tables, these were the respective results, with North or South the declarer in each case: 6-Clubs made, 6-Hearts down one, 4-Hearts bid and an extra trick made, 6-Hearts made, 7-Hearts doubled and down two, 4-Hearts bid and made six, and 7-Hearts down two not doubled.

Notice how the worst North-South score, of down 300, got North-South pair 5 no match points, how the next worst of down 100 got pair 7 only 1 point for beating one pair, how the next worst of down 50 produced two match points, and so on. Also notice how the worst East-West score, for East-West pair 3, against whom North-South scored 980, produced no match points for East-West pair 3, and so on.

When two pairs are tied for the same score, they split the match points which would have been awarded if they were not tied. Thus a tie for bottom and next to bottom, or for the 0 and 1 spots, would give each a half a point. Likewise a tie for the 4 and 5 positions would give the tied pairs  $4\frac{1}{2}$  match points each. If three pairs are tied, at the 4, 5 and 6 spots, they each get 5. Here you have the entire method of match point scoring for a pair game.

Film Stars Arrive In City for War Bond Rally Today

Program at 10 o'Clock Will Be Preceded by Vic- tory Breakfast

Miss Paulette Goddard and William Gargan, popular motion picture stars, arrived quietly in Cumberland last night for this city's second war bond rally in three months which will be held this morning.

The program today will open with a canteen style victory breakfast in Central Y. M. C. A. at 8:30 o'clock and will be followed at 10 o'clock by the bond rally and dedication of the honor roll bearing names of 2,000 Allegheny county men now in the armed services of their country.

Admission to the breakfast is purchase of at least a $100 bond. A nominal charge will be made for the coffee and doughnuts that will be served. Goal for the breakfast is the sale of $50,000 worth of bonds.

Arrived at 8:46 p. m.

The stars and their entourage arrived here at 8:46 p. m. yesterday on the Baltimore and Ohio railroad's "Ambassador" from Washington, D. C.

Time of their arrival was not announced and they were greeted only by a small group, headed by Dr. W. A. Gracie, chairman of the reception committee, Clarence Litzberg, chairman of the breakfast committee, and Fielding K. O'Kelly, chairman of the motion picture division of the Allegheny County War Bond Committee.

Arriving with the stars were Mervin Houser, tour manager, Thomas Baldrich, regional representative of Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, and Miss Margaret P. Greif, associate administrator of the Maryland War Savings Staff.

The group was escorted to Fort Cumberland hotel where they will remain until 8:25 o'clock this morning when they will leave for the Victory breakfast.

Word of the arrival of Miss Goddard and Gargan spread rapidly and some autograph seekers made their way to Gargan's room. He gave his autograph with the provision that the recipients purchase as many war bonds and stamps as possible. Those who sought Miss Goddard however, were disappointed since she retired soon after reaching the hotel.

Gargan Flew East

Gargan left Los Angeles Saturday at 4:30 p. m. and flew to Washington for the trip here. Miss Goddard has been in the East four days.

The stars and those traveling with them will leave Cumberland at 11:30 o'clock this morning by motor for Hagerstown where another bond rally will be held this afternoon. They will appear in Frederick tonight.

The Victory breakfast will last an hour this morning and William C. Walsh, attorney, will be the toastmaster. At 9:30 a. m. a concert will be presented at the bond platform on North Centre street by Allegheny high school band and the rally will begin promptly at 10 o'clock.

Miss Goddard and Gargan will be presented to the audience by Mayor Thomas F. Conlon and each of the stars then will speak briefly. Dedication of the honor roll will be preceded by singing the "Star Spangled Banner," led by A. Florian Wilson. John L. Towler, president of the Junior association of commerce, will speak briefly about the honor roll. The bond sale will follow at approximately 10:30 a. m. with G. Pennington Richards and Stewart W. Phillips as masters of ceremonies.

In event of rain the rally will be held in the state armory.

MANY PERSONS HELP COMPLETE LOCAL SERVICEMEN'S HONOR ROLL

Jaycee President Gives Credit To Score of Local Citizens

Work has been completed on the honor roll of men and women in the service of their country, and the huge display has been erected on North Centre street, just around the corner from Baltimore street, according to Jack L. Towler, president of the Junior Association of Commerce, sponsors.

The honor roll will be formally dedicated today during the war bond and stamp rally program, when Miss Paulette Goddard and William Gargan, Hollywood motion picture stars make their appearance here.

Towler said last night that the honor roll is the culmination of an idea of the association's Victory committee of which Albert O. Humbertson of Bowling Green is chairman. The completion and final erection of the honor roll was made possible through the cooperation of a large number of men in the organization, and a large number of local men and women asked to volunteer their time, money and services, Towler explained.

Board Is Completed

Actual lettering of the board was done by J. E. Dennison, local painting contractor, and a number of his employees who donated their time. Materials were furnished by the Buchanan Lumber company, South Cumberland Planning Mill company, General Outdoor Advertising company, which also did the construction and erection. The erection of the board was also approved and partially supervised by city officials and city employees.

The lot on which the honor roll is situated is loaned to the Junior Association as the location of the board by Dr. Frank M. Wilson one of the property owners and Charles A. Piper, agent for another property owner. The curtain which will cover the board until the time of the dedication is loaned by the Strand theater.

To a group of volunteer women, goes the credit for compiling the names, which were made obtainable through the cooperation of local draft boards and recruiting stations. A total of forty working days were required to list all the names and this task was completed by Mrs. John R. Wilkinson, Mrs. Thomas Davis, Mrs. Norman T. Smith, Mrs. Albert O. Humbertson and Mrs. C. J. Everline.

Members of the Victory committee and the association who worked on the idea include, besides Humbertson, C. Eugene Howell, the Rev. Alfred L. Cressler, C. William Gilchrist, Hermann Neumann, Robert W. Fink, P. Allan Weatherholt, Fred D. Steading, John E. Murphy, C. L. Coughenour, D. Clifford Goodfellow and Joseph Stakem.

The original plan of the association was to erect the board for the duration and then to promote a campaign for having it converted into a permanent memorial and record to be placed in one of the local parks or in some public building.

Permanent Roll Planned

However, at the suggestion of Mayor Thomas F. Conlon, a committee representing a number of civic, historical, service and other groups has been formed to plan a permanent honor roll for the roundabout of the city hall. The junior association has offered its records to this city group to facilitate the task, and Jack L. Towler, president of the association was last week elected to head the civic body.

When the honor roll is unveiled tomorrow, there may be some local names which should be on the board that do not appear, members of the committee said. This is due to the fact that there are some local men who enlisted in the service in other communities, or who were in the service prior to conscription. Their names, which do not appear in local draft board or recruiting offices will be added, if relatives telephone the association's offices, number 29, and give their names and other needed information.

It is the intention of the committee to show the name of every local man or woman in any branch of military or naval service on the honor roll. As additional men are called or enlist, these names will be added.

Public School Enrollment Is 400 Less than in 1941

Decrease Is Largely in High School Grades, Supervisor Says

Public school enrollment in Allegheny county this year, totaling approximately 15,000 students, is about 400 less than in 1941, Arthur G. Ramey, supervisor of pupil personnel, announced Saturday.

The decrease, largely in the high school department, is attributed to the number of students who have left school to go to work and to those who have joined the armed forces.

High schools in the county show a decrease of 325 with those in Cumberland accounting for 157 of the total. Enrollment at Port Hill is down 150 while Allegheny has seven less students this year than last. Port Hill's total enrollment Saturday was 1,855 and Allegheny's was 1,611.

Beall high school, Frostburg, has a total enrollment of 904, seventy-six less than in 1941, and Bruce high school, Westport, with twenty-six less students than a year ago, has an enrollment of 582.

Elementary grades (one to six) show a decrease of only seventy-five and the greater part of that number is included in the fourth, fifth and the sixth grades.

In general, Ramey said, the primary grades (one to three) show an increase which, he added, is due to a rise in the birth rate.

Enrollment figures as compared to last year follow:

School	1941	1942
Port Hill	1,855	1,611
Beall	904	582
Penn. Ave.	563	308
St. Mary's	299	230
Central St.	202	191
West Side	238	252
Mid. Ave.	714	410
Gephart	205	237
Oldtown	440	447
Cresapton	656	690
Lake	170	172
Barton	431	427
St. Mary's	391	381
Midland	271	260
Coranville	136	142
